Patsy Riley of Ashland, Alabama became Alabama's First Lady on January 20, 2003 with the swearing in of her husband, Governor Bob Riley. In addition to being the grandmother of four, she travels the state promoting her platform, Petticoat Politics - a movement to get the women of Alabama involved in issues that she has chosen to support. These issues range from promoting the natural beauty of Alabama to foster care and domestic violence. In 2003, Mrs. Riley took the initiative to renovate and reopen one of the state's most beautiful assets - the Governor's Mansion. Since its reopening, this extraordinary home and grounds has hosted a variety of state and charitable functions and has been toured by thousands.

The Krackeroo Kids Character Education Program is a value-based character program for the K-3 audience which utilizes the Roo-kids, open-ended stories, coloring books and videos to teach children character-building traits such as: motivation, caring, love, inspiration and sharing. For more information on the Krackeroo Kids Education Program, please visit their web site at www.krackerookids.com. Shelton State supports this program by offering their research and consultation capabilities, and use of their facilities. "We are a proud partner of Krackeroo Kids Character Education Program and I am confident of the positive impact the program will have on our youth," said Rick Rogers, president of Shelton State.
